Each player should be listed by full name even if they don't have any stats.
All stats should be the total that player has up to that point in the year.
In order for the stats to be posted they must be turned in weekly no later than Wednesday on a form layed out like this one. If you miss that date your stats will not get updated until the following week.
Stats are not required to be submitted, but if you do not submit on a fairly regular basis you can't just turn in your season final stats and have them posted. If you are worried about being scouted by your stats believe me after your first game everyone knows your studs whether you post your stats or not.
